Man arrested for dog fighting on Pea Ridge

By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

An Estill County man has been arrested and charged with first degree cruelty to animals after an anonymous caller reported dog fighting was taking place on Pea Ridge. The caller told dispatch there was also one dead dog at the residence.

Estill County Sheriff's Deputy Randy Farthing was dispatched to the residence of Gregory Morris, 44, of Pea Ridge Road, Friday, June 8. When he arrived he met a gruesome scene.

Farthing questioned Morris concerning the dog fights and the dead dog the caller had reported.

Morris told Farthing he had six pit bulls but he had not been fighting them and there was no dead dog at the home. He told Farthing he was welcome to come inside his property and look for himself.

Once inside, Farthing reported seeing six pit bulls. Four of the dogs were bloody and had visible injuries that Farthing said appeared to be new. They also had scars from previous injuries on their bodies.

The other two dogs were puppies and did not exhibit any injuries or scars.

In his uniform citation, Farthing wrote that there was blood all over the walls and floors of the home.

Farthing also found a dead chicken in the yard that Morris admitted had died in a chicken fight.

In one bedroom of the home Farthing found a bag of what Morris told him was marijuana and digital scales.

Farthing said there was a blood trail in the living room that led to the edge of a chair and then behind it. He said he asked Morris if the dead dog was behind the chair and Morris told him he could look for himself.

When Farthing moved the chair he found a bag full of white pills that poison control identified as clonazepam. Farthing said there were 70 pills in the bag.

Farthing also found seven hydrocodone tablets under the cushion of the chair.

Farthing said there were several plates in the house with white powder on them, rolling papers and roach clips on several of the tables.

In his citation, Farthing reported the pit bulls began fighting while he was there and animal control had to be called. They became so aggressive Morris broke a stick over the back of one to subdue him and Animal Control Agent Tommy Mullins had to use pepper spray on them.

One pit bull ran away and animal control was not able to find it.

Mullins said the dogs looked like they had been used to fight.

Animal Control removed five pit bulls from the home.

Morris is charged with second degree possession of a controlled substance, first degree cruelty to animals, possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Bond was set at $8,000 cash.

New travel agency first of its kind in Irvine

By KYLE WOOSLEY

If you have taken a stroll down Main Street in Irvine lately, there's a chance you have noticed The Mikes Travel Agency.

The Mikes Travel Agency, which is owned and operated by Mike Collins, of Estill County, and Mike Noland, who moved to Estill County last year, opened its doors on April 2. Though Main Street has many small businesses, a travel agency has never been one of them.

"This is where we're from," said Noland. "There's just nothing like this in a place like this."

Collins, who has spent most of his life in Estill County, said he is familiar with the people in the community and feels like they will appreciate his passion.

"I have a passion for travel and I know a lot of people around here do too," said Collins.

Ravenna approves first reading of budget, gets police grant

By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

The Ravenna City Council approved the first reading of the 2012-2013 budget and discussed CEDA housing issues at its recent meeting.

City Clerk Kim Parks read out loud the proposed budget for the council's approval and told the council it was, "pretty much the same as last year," with minor changes.

Travis Estridge of CEDA asked the council to approve a pay resolution for $39,221 and also heard concerns from the daughter of one of the recipients of new housing in Ravenna.

Aubrey Adams is currently living in her CEDA home but her daughter, Sheila, and several council members are concerned with some of the construction of the home.

Adams' daughter told Estridge she was "tickled to death" with the new home but there were a few thing that needed to be fixed for them to completely enjoy it.

Lauderdale, Fla. to become certified and get licensed. Around Jan. 2 of this year, Collins said they were practicing.

Although they just received their license and purchased their office, Collins and Noland said they have been practicing for nearly five years, assisting family and close friends in booking vacations for free.

"We've actually been booking travel for people and booking vacations for about five years," Collins said. "We decided we might as well do it for a living."

Before acquiring their office, however, Noland said they operated out of home, which caused some difficulties as far as technology goes.

"We did this out of home, way out in the country," Noland said. "Our cellphones wouldn't pick up out there."

Noland said the agency has brought in business a lot quicker than he originally anticipated.

"I figured it would take quite a while to get people walking in off the street," Noland said.

Noland said the Mushroom Festival, Facebook and word-of-mouth are to thank for the community's interest in their business.

"The city worked really good with us and seemed really excited about us bringing this here," Collins said. "This is something the county's never had that I'm aware of."

Collins said Irvine Mayor Ernest Farmer has stopped by every week and various downtown businesses have welcomed them to the area.

Noland said a lot of their business even comes from outside of Estill County from places such as Nicholasville, Richmond and Lexington.

"A lot of people would rather go online and book it themselves, but what they don't realize is a travel agency could get you more,"

"The city worked really good with us and seemed really excited about us bringing this here."

-Mike Collins, owner

Collins said. "It's kind of hard for a person to sit at home and sort through everything."

Collins said what a lot of people don't know is a consultation with the agency is actually free-of-charge. The travel agency makes their money from commissions from the hotels, airlines and cruise lines.

"Everybody is afraid as soon as they walk in the door we're going to charge them," Collins said. "This is new for the community so they don't know what to expect."

Collins said their agency offers a payment plan, so you don't have to pay everything up front.

"Here, they can go ahead and plan it and make payments when they go," Collins said. "It makes people feel better when they can put a small amount down."

The agency offers their own travel insurance, if the client does not want to get it elsewhere, Collins said and will help you fill out passport applications if needed.

They will also burn you a DVD of pictures from your trip.

"We had a group go in January and we had them bring a data card with pictures on it," Collins said. "We made them about an hour long video."

Collins said he does charge about $10 for the videos because of the time it takes and he occasionally has to buy music. But he keeps all of his discs on file for about six months.

"Just about anywhere a person would want to go, we get them there," said Noland. "This one guy came in and was just wanting to backpack across Australia."

Collins said one thing he would like people to know is how cheap going on a cruise actually is. When you take a regular vacation, you have to pay for three meals a day, entertainment and travel. But when you book a cruise, all of this is included in the price, which Collins said makes your trip cost less.

"The only thing a person would have to buy is alcohol and a shore excursion," Noland said.

Currently, the Mikes Travel Agency is hosting a "Come Sail Away with Me" campaign for October. The travel deal is a special cruise package that will include cruise fare, food, port charges, taxes and pre-paid gratuity.

"We negotiate a good rate so we can take people in the community who want to try it out but don't want to do it by themselves," Collins said. "I'd love to get as many Estill Countians as I could to go with us."

Despite the day-to-day hassles that come with the job, Collins said he enjoys seeing his client's face when they book a vacation.

"When you book a vacation and see that twinkle in somebody's eyes to see how excited they are to actually be going somewhere, that's probably the best part," Collins said.

Irvine City Council discusses damaged apartment building

Linda Carter, of Wallace Court, addressed the council Monday evening about the diverted traffic from Wallace Court to Sweet Lick Road.

The Irvine City Council met to discuss the budget for the 2012-2013 fiscal year, but spent most of the meeting talking about a damaged apartment building on Wallace Court.

"The whole end of the building has big cracks all the way up the brick," said Fire Chief Tony Murphy. "We didn't know what else to do but we shut the street down."

Councilwoman Nelle Williams expressed concern for the building and said not having it torn down would reflect poorly on the council. She asked that the building be condemned.

"I think it looks bad on us that we'd allow it," Williams said. "It's all rotten. It's awful, the whole thing is awful."

Due to the building being damaged, traffic has been diverted from Wallace Court onto Sweet Lick Road.

Linda Carter, of Wallace Court, also addressed the council regarding the closing of the road.

"Somebody is going to have a wreck going down this road," Carter said. "It is an inconvenience, it's a waste of gas and nothing has been done."

Attorney Rodney Davis said, despite the inconvenience, the road must be closed due to safety.

"We can cite her [the owner], but we don't regulate that type of commercial building within the city," said Attorney Rodney Davis. "You have to look at it from a safety standpoint. I'd rather have an inconvenience."

After a short discussion, the council approved the first reading the 2012-2013 budget.

"It gets harder each year to provide, but we're surviving," Farmer said. "We're doing well but we're not doing as well as we'd like."

The mayor gave a prepared budget message for the council and those in attendance.

"The financial state of the city is not where we'd like it to be, but it's still better than some," Farmer said. "I hope you find this budget proposal reasonable and workable."

City Clerk Robin Sewell asked for raises across the board for state employees.

"I have been here for four years and there's never been a raise across the board," Sewell said.

Farmer appointed Councilmen Tim Burkhart and Billy Arthur to a committee to look into the request, but said there is no guarantee.

The next council meeting will be 7 p.m. July 9 at Irvine City Hall.

They told Estridge some of the railing on the porches is dangerous because it is loose, the shower head is too high to be adjusted and also sprays water into the bathroom floor and some appliances are too high for Adams, who is four foot eight, to reach.

Estridge told the council he would discuss the issues with the contractor who built the home and be sure he makes corrections.

"I would hate for him to close this out without this being fixed," Councilwoman Joan Richardson said.

Mayor Charles Crowe addressed the council about more vandalism at the war memorial at the Veteran's Memorial Park. This is the second time the memorial has been vandalized this year.

He told the council he believed it resulted from having the open restrooms at the park.

"If it continues to happen we will have to close those restrooms to the public and go back to using port-a-potties," he said.

He also asked Ravenna Police Chief Ken White to look further into a previous case where a driver wrecked and destroyed a sign that read "Welcome to Ravenna."

The driver was supposed to contact his insurance about paying for the sign to be replaced but has not been heard from since the accident.

Crowe told the council about a motor home given to the city from the government. It has been moved from Fort Campbell to Ravenna. The motor home, valued at more than $30,000, has to be kept by the city for a year and can then be sold, Crowe said.

Chief White presented the council with his monthly activities report for May for approval.

Crowe announced the police department had been awarded a $4,000 grant from the Kentucky Office of Homeland Security. The grant money is to be used to purchase equipment including weapons, body armor and vests.

The council also discussed the municipal fund hearing scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday, June 18.

The hearing is for the purpose of obtaining written and oral comments from the citizens of Ravenna regarding the use of carry-over municipal funds.

The city currently has $2,396.94 carrying over from fiscal year 2011-2012.

In other business the council approved the fire report, held a council questions and comments session and opted to discusses ordinances at another time.

OPINION

Lessons about texting and driving learned from news stories

By WHITNEY LEGGETT
CV&T News Editor

Just like most other teenagers I simply couldn't wait to get my drivers license when I turned 16.

I was excited to have some freedom and some responsibility. Little did I know, driving came with a bunch of rules and regulations about where I could go and when I could do it.

One important rule was that we got rid of all distractions while we were driving.

This meant we picked a radio station, put our phones on silent and kept them in our purses before we could even put the car in drive.

Slowly, but surely, as I got older the rules became more relaxed. I was allowed to be out later, go more places and drive further distances by myself. Along with these relaxed rules came a new sense of confidence in my driving.

I no longer gripped the steering wheel until my knuckles were white and I started to feel more comfortable changing stations and even eating while I was driving.

This also meant that I started using my phone while behind the wheel. At first I would just answer phone calls from my parents or friends. Then I started making phone calls myself. This led to me reading text messages while driving and ultimately my downward spiral to distracted driving ended with me texting and driving.

I will admit up front that I am a habitual distracted driver. My iPhone has been my worst partner in crime. I have not only texted while driving but I have checked and responded to emails, taken pictures and even checked my bank account while behind the wheel.

When I sit back and think about it, I can name several times when I swerved around on the road or came close to rear ending someone because of what can only be described as my pure stupidity.

The sad thing is that even when I was so distracted while driving that I almost wrecked, I would continue to do it. And it only seemed to get worse.

I guess that when you're young you have this idea that you are invincible... as if you can't be broken. I supposed that I was under the impression that I wouldn't wreck, that I wouldn't destroy my cute little car, that I wouldn't hurt or potentially kill myself, or, worst of all, that I wouldn't potentially hurt or kill someone else.

Sadly, I'm not alone in this. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention reported that 58 percent of high school seniors admitted to texting or emailing while driving in an anonymous survey conducted last year.

There are stories in the news on almost a daily basis about the dangers of texting and driving.

I don't think the reality of these dangers really hit me until now. I read an article this week about a young man whose whole life has been changed and potentially ruined because he decided to text while driving.

"Nothing on a cell phone, tablet or PDA is so important that it can't wait."

Aaron Deveau, 18, was convicted of motor vehicle homicide by texting last week in Massachusetts. His conviction is the first of its kind in Massachusetts and follows a fatal wreck Deveau caused in February 2011.

MSNBC.com reported Deveau was texting when his vehicle swerved across the center line and crashed head on into a truck killing 55-year-old, father-of-three Daniel Bowley.

Deveau was sentenced to two years in prison and lost his license for 15 years because of the wreck.

When I read this story, the seriousness of texting and driving became real to me.

This column would probably be more powerful had I been involved in some sort of accident because of my texting while driving.

But I can say that I am incredibly thankful it didn't take that.

Since reading this article, I have decided I am not willing to sacrifice my quality of life, my life in general or the life of someone else because of a text message.

I have already started making efforts to cut down on things that I do to distract me while driving and I hope that this story will encourage others to do the same.

Nothing on a cell phone tablet or PDA is so important that it can't wait. If it is, as silly as it seems, the right thing to do is pull over.

I am not innocent and I don't intend for this column to sound like I am preaching to my readers. I am not.

I am thankful that this article I read was a wake-up call for me. I pray that it does the same for my readers.

Texting and driving is a serious problem and it's becoming a serious offense. Legislation is being passed across the country to try to prevent accidents like Deveau's.

It's important to try to make changes now, before it's too late.

Writer finds marrying, starting a family young isn't the only option

By KYLE WOOSLEY
KPA Summer Intern

For a college student, weekends are your time to unwind. Take a night on the town with your friends, let loose all of the stress from the week before and just have a good time…or so one would think.

When I first came to college, I wanted the full experience. Study hard during the week and have those fun times on the weekends you have to wait to tell your children about until they hit their teenage years.

Unfortunately for me, however, most of my friends do not share this belief. And the reason surrounding that is simple: they're in a relationship.

Don't get me wrong, I long for the day when I'll find my soulmate and ride off into the sunset for a happily ever after moment. But…I'm 20 years old.

I've probably got a good three or four rounds of troubled relationships left in me before I find "the one." And I'm not about to spend my youth worrying about finding them either.

But most of my friends are tying the knot, having children and acting like their 40 years old already. I'm the only one of my friends who is single or without a child, and that's including the ones who are younger than me.

Most of them can't even take a night off from their Stepford Wives (or Stepford husbands) fantasies to go out every once in a while.

Maybe it's just me, but I live by a quote from one my favorite books of all time, The Perks of Being a Wallflower, "This moment will be just another story someday."

Whatever life you have now, is more than likely not going to be the life you're going to have five years from now.

About three years ago, I thought I was at a phase where I had it all figured out. But then things went downhill fast and now I'm somewhere I never in a million years thought I would be.

"I've probably got a good three or four rounds of troubled relationships left in me before I find 'the one.'"

As much as I love and care for my friends, the sad truth is most of them will probably be divorced, remarried and have approximately two children before they're 23 years old. And that's just not the life for me.

Instead of fretting about my friends uncertain futures, I take the time I can get with them and enjoy every second of it, even if I am the awkward third wheel. Because I know it won't be that way for long.

Remember, this moment will be just another story someday.

They said it... Memories

"The worst part of holding the memories is not the pain. It's the loneliness of it. Memories need to be shared."

ESTILL COUNTY BOY PARTICIPATES IN CIVIL WAR REENACTMENTS

By LISA BICKNELL
CV&T Staff Writer

Fifteen-year-old Tyler Banks first became interested in Civil War reenactments when he was in fifth grade. He and his family lived in Madison County at the time.

"Each week, the teacher gave us a newspaper to read," Tyler said. "One day I saw a picture of one of my classmates doing one of the reenactments at the Richmond Battlefield."

When he mentioned it to her, she invited him to the Battle of Richmond on Highway 421. Tyler attended as a spectator that time, but participated in the reenactment of the Battle of Perryville a few months later.

He's been passionate about living history ever since.

Reenactments are staged to educate the general public about critical battles and where they were fought in the war.

Tyler says that there have been reenactments for every battle ever recorded including the World Wars and Vietnam. Even the Romans reenacted some of their most important battles.

"Whenever I talk to people at school about reenactments probably 50 percent of them have never heard of them."

Though participants dress in period costumes and carry period weapons, reenactments extend beyond staged war.

Authentic camps are set up near the battlefield where folks in period uniforms might share "hardtack," which are hard crackers or biscuits made from flour, water and salt that lasted for years. Hardtack was a Civil War staple.

Reenactors bed down in the hay and sometimes participate in period dances and church services.

Every effort is made to ensure that all details are as authentic as possible, from food to clothing to social events.

"They really try to take you back in time," says Tyler.

Sometimes whole families participate, as does the Burns family who first invited Tyler to one of the events.

"He's tried to get us to do that," says Allyson Banks, Tyler's mother. "I like to go watch him and support him, but I'm really not much for sleeping on hay."

Tyler's has a younger brother, Landon, and his father is Dewayne Banks.

The period clothing Tyler and his friends wear to the events can be ordered from catalogs and websites but is very expensive.

To save money, they sometimes order patterns from a sutler, which is a vendor who sells period uniforms and supplies to reenactors at battlefield sites. Sutlers of the Civil War days followed the troops and sold supplies to them from a wagon or tent.

Tyler says that he helps his friends, Sarah and Emily Burns, do some of the sewing by hand, but they use a period sewing machine to finish off the edges and make the clothing more durable.

Tyler gets lots of Civil War-themed gifts for Christmas and birthdays since he took up this hobby. Last year, he got an 1861 Springfield rifle musket from his parents for Christmas.

He also exchanges gifts with the Burns family. They swap handmade wooden games and other period pieces, like the "housewife"--a homemade sewing kit that soldiers used to repair their clothing while they were off to war.

"Whenever I talk to people at school about reenactments," Tyler says, "probably 50percent of them have never heard of them."

Still, for those involved in the recreations, interest is high. Allyson Banks says she is often surprised at the number of spectators that these events attract. When they attended the Battle of Sacramento in western Kentucky recently, nearly 500 people showed up to watch in the tiny town near Madisonville.

"Reenacting has opened up so many opportunities for Tyler and the Burns children," Allyson says.

Besides the Battle of Sacramento, Tyler and his friends have participated in the Battle of Richmond, the Battle of Perryville, living history events for the Irvine-McDowell House in Richmond and the Waveland Estate in Lexington.

They also had opportunity to speak at Eastern Kentucky University to more than 40 social studies teacher graduates, and they met with Governor Brashear to accept money on behalf of the Battle of Richmond historical estate and museum.

They participated in a living history movie clip for Kentucky Life on KET and in living history events held at the Richmond and Perryville battlegrounds where local schools brought busloads of students on field trips to watch them.

Tyler is a sophomore at the Estill County High School and, not surprisingly, his favorite subject is history.

After graduation Tyler plans to go into the ROTC program at EKU. He plans to eventually enter a military career in the Army and Ranger school.

This year's Battle of Richmond will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Civil War on Saturday and Sunday, August 25-26. More information about the event can be seen at www.battleofrichmond.org.

According to their website, the original battle of Richmond was the second largest Civil War battle in Kentucky and was the most overwhelming Confederate victory of the entire Civil War.

Come August, Tyler Banks plans to be at the Richmond Battlefield with his friends, bringing history to life.

Striped and spotted cucumber beetles can cause serious losses in cucumbers

By ERIC BAKER
Ag. Extension Agent

Striped and spotted cucumber beetles can cause serious losses in cucumbers, muskmelons, and watermelons in Kentucky. Cucumber beetles are a major concern to muskmelon and cucumber growers because they vector a disease called bacterial wilt of cucurbits.

While the adults feed mainly on foliage, pollen and flowers, their feeding on melon rinds late in the season may reduce market quality. Larvae of these insects feed on roots and stems, but this damage is minimal compared to the potential losses due to bacterial wilt.

Striped cucumber beetles are yellow-green with three black stripes down the back and are 1/4 inch long. Although similar in appearance, the striped cucumber beetle and the western corn rootworm are not the same. Additionally, the middle segment (tibia) of the hind leg on the striped cucumber beetle is yellow, while that on the western corn rootworm is black.

The spotted cucumber beetle (also known as the southern corn rootworm), also 1/4 inch long, is yellow-green with 12 black spots on its back.

Cucumber beetles overwinter as adults in protected areas near buildings, in fence rows, or in wood lots. They become active in mid-spring, when temperatures begin to increase. The adults feed and females deposit eggs in cracks in the soil at the base of cucurbits. The eggs hatch and the larvae feed on the roots. These larvae will pupate in the soil, later in the summer the next generation of beetles will emerge. These beetles will also feed on the cucumber and melon plants, including the fruit and overwinter until the next spring.

The bacterium that causes bacterial wilt overwinters in the gut of some striped cucumber beetles. When beetles become active in the spring and begin feeding, they spread the bacterium either through their feces or from contaminated mouthparts. Chewing damage on young leaves open entry points for the pathogen. Once inside the plant, the bacterium multiplies quickly in the vascular system, producing blockages that cause the leaves to wilt. Beetles are attracted to infected plants and can pick up the bacterium and move it to healthy plants.

The first symptom of bacterial wilt on cucumber and muskmelon is a distinct flagging of lateral and individual leaves. Beetle feeding is not always obvious on wilted leaves. Soon, adjacent leaves and finally the entire vine will wilt. The wilting spreads as the multiplying bacteria move within the vascular system of the plant. Eventually, the entire plant wilts and dies. There is nothing you can do to save an infected plant. The only way to avoid bacterial wilt is to prevent the beetles from feeding on the plant. Fruit produced on a wilting plant usually will not be marketable. One way to determine if bacterial wilt has infected a plant is to cut the stem and squeeze both cut ends. A sticky sap will ooze from the water conducting tissues of the stem. If you push the cut ends of the stem together and slowly pull them apart, you will be able to see a roping effect if bacteria are present. This sap contains millions of bacteria.

Begin cucumber beetle control as soon as seedlings emerge. Repeated applications of contact insecticides are necessary to protect muskmelon plants from beetle feeding and transmission of bacterial wilt. There is usually a peak in beetle activity each spring that lasts two to four weeks. This is the most important time to control the beetles. Applications of foliar insecticides may be required twice per week during peak beetle activity. Because watermelon is not susceptible to the wilt disease, protection is necessary only when plants are small and beetle populations are high.

ENCOURAGING WORD: THE INFLUENCE OF GOOD FATHERS

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

It was, indeed, a pleasant visit at the end of a long and busy day. The father, the mother, and their little son welcomed us graciously into their home. As we visited, the little boy, active and playful, was expressive and interacted with us in a pleasant way that made the visit most enjoyable.

At once, some things were obvious; it was noticeable in several significant ways that the life of the father was having a decidedly shaping influence upon the life of that little boy. Beyond his physical appearance that was the result of gene transmission, the influence of his father was obvious in the son's attitude, imitative habits of speech, and behavior. In so many ways, the little fellow talked and acted like his father. To put it in vernacular terms, some would say that the little boy was "the spittin' image" of his father.

Fathers are many things to their children. They are examples, mentors, teachers, disciplinarians, guidance counselors, and role models for them. Therefore, as fathers live with their children from day to day in the home and interact with them on a regular basis, they are one of the more important life shaping forces in the lives of their children.

Frequently, those who work in the field of family services, report that one of the major problems in our society comes from the fact that too many children grow up in homes with one parent without the shaping influence of fathers. Without the shaping influence of good fathers, children miss something tremendously important and life is not what it should be; therefore they go in the wrong direction.

Father's Day, observed annually on the third Sunday in June since 1910 when the first observance was held in Spokane, Washington, is a time to pay tribute to good fathers and recognize the important role they have in the development of their sons and daughters and, through that role, the contribution they make to a stable society.

Invitation to Bid

The Estill County Board of Education is seeking vendors of gasoline and diesel fuel, who would be willing to follow the enclosed provisions. Vendors agreeing to this proposal will be placed on an "eligible vendors list."

If you wish to be placed on the "eligible vendors list" please submit your name to the Estill County Board of Education Transportation Department, P.O. Box 930, Irvine, Kentucky 40336. Your name may be faxed to 606-726-9812: Attention: Danny Click, Coordinator of Support Services. All names are to be received by July 2, 2012.

As fuel needs arise for our district, a call will be made by the Estill County School Transportation Department to all "eligible vendors." Vendors will be asked for bids following the provisions of this document. The lowest bidder for the quantity of fuel requested will be awarded the bid for that specific order.

The "eligible vendors list" will be updated annually. This "eligible vendor" contract period for this bid document will be from July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2013.

FUEL SPECIFICATIONS

1. Those specifications are for the gasoline and diesel fuel necessary for the operation of the school buses and other vehicles owned and operated by the Estill County Board of Education for the period beginning July 1, 2012 until July 30, 2013.

2. Fuel furnished by the successful vendor must meet these specifications:

a. Gasoline must be 87 or higher octane rating, unleaded.

b. Supplier shall provide the board with the octane rating of the gasoline being supplied when requested to do so.

c. Diesel fuel to be refined from virgin crude and low sulfur. The school district reserves the option of dropping an "eligible vendor" if the diesel fuel proves to be of low quality.

3. Fuel is to be delivered to the school's Transportation Department Bus Garage.

4. The total amount of gasoline the supplier might expect to furnish would be 2,000 gallons, more or less. Diesel fuel amounts 10,000 gallons more or less.

5. The bid price is to be the net price the board is to pay. This price should not include the Federal Excise Tax. Board will provide the supplier with the necessary Federal Tax Exemption Certificate.

6. No "tie-in" bid requiring the purchase of motor oil or any other product will be accepted.

7. The supplier must provide to the Estill County Board of Education Transportation Department the Material Safety Data Information Forms for the product delivered.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

1. Time Period for Bidding. A phone call will be placed from the Estill County School Transportation Department to each "eligible vendor." An authorized school representative will specify the quantities and type of fuel needed. The vendor will be asked for a bid quote including all applicable taxes and delivery charges. The bid must be signed by a person having the authority to bind the company or firm by his signature, and faxed to the Transportation Department by the time stated. Fax number for the Transportation Department is 606-726-9812.

2. Award. The successful bidder will be contacted as soon as the various quotes are compiled and the lowest bid is determined. The total bid prices for the gasoline and diesel will be combined and averaged to find the lowest average price per load. All bid tabulations will be recorded on a standard tabulation form. A copy of the tabulation form will be available in the business office for inspections by all "eligible vendors."

3. Delivery. Fuel must be delivered within 24 hours or at an agreed time between vendor and the Transportation Department of the Estill County School System.

4. Failure to Bid. The school district reserves the option of dropping an "eligible vendor" if the vendor fails to bid when called upon.

5. Payments. All billings will be made to the Estill County Board of Education. P.O. Box 930, Irvine, Kentucky 40336. Payment in full will be made following the first regular meeting of the Estill County Board of Education, after the bill is received. Regular Board meetings are scheduled the third Thursday of each month. All delivery invoices must be signed by a designated employee of the Estill County Board of Education verifying that the goods were received in the quantities specified.

Water - Essential for Life

This report is designed to inform the public about the quality of water and services provided on a daily basis. Our commitment is to provide our customers with a safe, clean, and reliable supply of drinking water. We want to assure that we will continue to monitor, improve, and protect the water system and deliver a high quality product. Water is the most indispensable product in every home and we ask everyone to be conservative and help us in our efforts to protect the water source and the water system.

We at IMU use the Kentucky River as our source for water. We only take about 1.3 million gallons a day on average to supply 15,000 people with safe drinking water. Although we have a ample supply of water there is always room for conservation. There are two types of water sources, ground water and surface water. The Kentucky River is a surface water source. Like all water sources it is suseptable to pollutants, not only directly dumped in to it, but also those contaminats that can enter from creeks, carsts and caverns hundreds of yard away. We have developed a source water assessment which identifies all the areas with in a large radius of the rivers edge to help us determine what could be a potential hazard to our source of water. The kentucky River is at moderate risk for hazards due to the pestisides, fertilizers and striaght pipes in the area. We monitor closely for these types of hazards to maintain our high quality of safe drinking water. This Source Water Assessment is updated and checked on a regular basis and is available for review upon request at our office.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects may be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and may pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include: Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, (sewage plants, septic systems, livestock operations, or wildlife). Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, (naturally occurring or from stormwater runoff, wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming). Pesticides and herbicides, (stormwater runoff, agriculture or residential uses). Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, (by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, or from gas stations, stormwater runoff, or septic systems). Radioactive contaminants, (naturally occurring or from oil and gas production or mining activities).

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water to provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some or all of these definitions may be found in this report:

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.
Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
Below Detection Levels (BDL) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.
Not Applicable (N/A) - does not apply.
Parts per million (ppm) - or milligrams per liter, (mg/l). One part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.
Parts per billion (ppb) - or micrograms per liter, (µg/L). One part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.
Parts per trillion (ppt) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.
Parts per quadrillion (ppq) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.
Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - a measure of the radioactivity in water.
Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.
Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.
Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity has no health effects. However, turbidity can provide a medium for microbial growth. Turbidity is monitored because it is a good indicator of the effectiveness of the filtration system.
Variances & Exemptions (V&E) - State or EPA permission not to meet an MCL or a treatment technique under certain conditions.
Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system shall follow.
Treatment Technique (TT) - a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Information About Lead:

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Your local public water system is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead.

Spanish (Español) Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre la calidad de su agua beber. Tradúzcalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

The data presented in this report are from the most recent testing done in accordance with administrative regulations in 401 KAR Chapter 8. As authorized and approved by EPA, the State has reduced monitoring requirements for certain contaminants to less often than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. Some of the data in this table, though representative, may be more than one year old. Unless otherwise noted, the report level is the highest level detected.

Take The Sting Out Of Summer Driving

The cost of going on a vacation or road trip may pinch your wallet as gas prices are projected to continue to rise, according to the U.S. Energy Information Administration. While you may be able to adjust your travel plans with shorter trips that are closer to home, one way to take the sting out of the cost of summer travel is to make sure your vehicle is road ready and use products that will improve your gas mileage and save you money on maintenance costs.

Simple steps like checking your tire pressure and getting a tune-up will improve your gas mileage.

•Upgrade your fluids. Not all motor oils are the same, and many people don't know how to select motor oil that will help them get optimum performance out of their car. Upgrading your vehicle's lubricants is often the quickest and cheapest way to improve your car's performance and reliability. Improved lubrication with premium synthetic motor oil like Royal Purple frequently translates into improved gas mileage. Individual results will vary, but numerous consumers have seen as much as a 5 percent increase in fuel economy by upgrading lubricants.

The switch to synthetic can save you in another way. The number of miles between oil changes can often be doubled or even tripled. Extended service intervals, sometimes as much as 12,000 miles between oil changes, keep vehicles out of the shop and save consumers money.

•Watch your tire pressure. Tires are mass produced for a variety of vehicles, so inflating your tires to the number on the outside wall of the tire is not sufficient. Check to see what your manufacturer recommends. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, keeping your tires inflated at the correct pressure can result in gasoline savings up to 12 cents a gallon.

•Check your oxygen sensor. Have your mechanic check your oxygen sensor at each tune-up. Oxygen sensors play an important role in your engine's perfor_mance and in reducing pollution. Depending on the age of your vehicle, oxygen sensors should be checked and replaced if needed from 30,000-100,000 miles. Keeping the oxygen sensor fresh may improve fuel economy as much as 10-15 percent.

Whether you're hitting the road this summer on a trip or daily driving, making sure your vehicle is ready for the road can mean savings even if you're paying more at the pump. For more information, visit www.RoyalPurple.com.

Helpful Hints...

1. If you want a crisp, brown crust on chicken or roast, rub mayonnaise over the skin.

2. Add a bit of instant coffee to gravy for brown color and nice flavor.

3. Instead of boiling beets, bake like potatoes.

4. Add 1/2 to 1 tsp. baking powder to a frying batter.

5. Put a whole onion in pan when cooking fresh lima beans.

6. Put a peeled garlic clove in a container with chips several hours for garlic flavored chips.

7. Dip a left over baked potato in water and bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

8. To heat biscuits, put in a well dampened bag, twist it closed and put in 300 degrees oven until warm.

9. To refreshen bread loaf, sprinkle lightly with water and put in brown paper bag in 300 degree oven for about 15 minutes.

10. Leftover whipped cream will retain its lightness if you add 1 tsp. light corn syrup to each 1/2 pint cream.

FOOD FOR THE SOUL

1 John 4:21:

21And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also.

Thoughts on This Verse... For over a week, John has reminded us again and again. We must love our brothers and sisters in Christ. This reminder, however, is the clincher. If we love God, then we must love his children and our brothers and sisters in Christ. Notice that the word isn't"should" or"will try" or"want to." No, we must. The Bible is careful not to put many"must do" or"thou shalt" commands in Scripture. But God's point is clear. Love of each other is not optional, negotiable, or even something to be delayed. God sent Jesus to die for the sins of all of God's children. How can we not love those for whom Christ gave so much? As Paul will say to the Corinthians,"God's love compels us!" We MUST love.

Estill County celebrates life with 2012 Relay For Life

By KYLE WOOSLEY
KPA Summer Intern

The summer heat was scorching down on Estill County last Friday, but it wasn't enough to stop close to 500 people from coming out to support the 2012 Relay For Life.

The annual celebration for cancer survivors kicked off with Boy Scout Troup #89 flag presentation, accompanied by Lauren Kennedy Mullins singing the National Anthem. Following the welcome from Irvine Relay For Life Chairperson Cynthia Barnes, everybody was led in prayer by Sherl Thomas.

Cancer survivors were then presented with a special pin from the American Cancer Society after their survivor lap.

Survivor Chair Sarah Rogers said there were 50 survivors present for the lap.

"I think it was a huge success," Rogers said. "I think it went really well."

The caregiver and team lap followed and began the all-night walk.

Other events throughout the night included Rice Station Christian Church's puppet ministries presentation, a men's hot legs contest, frozen T-shirt contest and the Irvine First Church of God's drama team presentation. Even Ronald McDonald made an appearance.

The event included a luminaria ceremony, where floating Chinese wish lanterns were released in memory, in honor and in hope. The ceremony was accompanied by music from Jessica Mullins.

At press time the exact amount of money made from the event was unknown. But Barnes said Relay teams are still turning in money and donations can still be made until August.

Barnes said her last year as chairperson of the Estill County organization went well.

"I think the event was fine," Barnes said. "It seemed our crowd was down a little."

Barnes said she believes numbers were down from last year due to the current state of the economy and other events that were going on that same night, such as the girls softball tournament.

Though the numbers were down, Barnes said the 2012 Relay For Life was a good way for her to go out with a bang.

To make a donation to Relay For Life, contact Cynthia Barnes at 643-5426 or Rebecca Wolfinbarger at 723-5871.
